There is a renewal of the talk of the necessity of a test of physical endurance before anything can be done. Such a test, of course, will be largely a theatrical performance, as there is no special reason to suppose that the silver men, having no special responsibilities on their shoulders, would succumb to fatigue quicker than the repeal men, and such a test would probably end in a truce and nothing else. It might serve, however, to demonstrate, if further demonstration is necessary, the fact that under the present rules of the Senate noth-Threats of Continued Filibustering.

Some of the radical silver men, like Stewart, declare that there shall be no compromonth, or two months, or three months, unless the majority surrender. This means, of course, if it means anything, that they will filibuster against a compromise as well as against the main bill itself. If it came to that, however, there would probably be no more than two or three silver men who would take such a position if a compromise were actually presented. The talk of compromise does not signify any attempt at an agreement between the silver men and those who are out and out for unconditional repeal. The radical and earnest unconditional repealers may be relied on never those who are out and out for unconditional repeal. The radical and earnest unconditional repealers may be relied on never to agree to any compromise and the conferences that have been held are not with them, but between men opposed to unconditional repeal radically, and others who will vote for repeal, but who would prefer to have the bill amended. It is claimed that a majority of the Senate would like to see the bill amended in some particular, but that there is not a majority in favor of any one form of amendment, and the purpose is, if possible, to have all who would favor amendment at all come together and agree on some particular amendment.

The Line of Compromise Work. It is on this line that the work for a compromise is being conducted, and whether or nominations and debate at once began, a not it is successful depends upon the cor-rectness of the assumption that there are rectness of the assumption that there are enough Senators willing to see the bill amended to make up a majority should they get together. The men who from the first have taken the position that there must be an unconditional repeal of the Sherman law and nothing else at this time, are as firm as a rock and most of them are perfectly willing to continue the fight as long as necessary to win, and express confidence that they can pass the bill eventually. It must therefore be in spite of the attitude of these men that a compromise is reached, if any can be reached. The idea of Mr. Cleveland agreeing to a compromise, though he might

The republicans are said to have material aid from the democratic side of the chamber, and especially in the case of Mr. Wootten of Delaware, who is said to be popular among the natives, each of whose votes is to be equal to that there are enough Senators willing to continue the fight as long as necessary to win, and express confidence that they can pass the bill eventually. It must therefore be in spite of the attitude of these men that a compromise is reached, if any can be reached. AN ELECTION POSSIBLE.

To Settle the Form of Government in Hawaii.

What an Election Would Mean-Mr Willis Sees the President-Executive Message Ready.

Interest in the Hawaiian question has been revived by outward evidences that the President and the Secretary of State are giving it a large share of their attention at present. There was an important conference on the subject at the White House this afternoon. Those present were the President, Secretary Gresham and Mr. Willis, the new minister to Hawaii. The latter did not leave the city last night, as was announced. He was not able to see the advisable that he should do so before departing for his distant post beyond the reach of the telegraph. He had already received his written instructions from the Light Breeze for the Big Yacht Secretary of State and has had several consultations with him since his appointment but it was not until today that he was enabled to get a personal statement from the President on the subject of his policy toward the Hawaiian Islands.

An Executive Message. An executive message on Hawaiian affairs has been prepared for some weeks, ready for transmission to the Senate whenthe consideration of other business by that dian affairs, making the statement as an inducement for an executive session which he sought that the public business was being delayed by reason of the failure of the Senate to act.

The Nominees.

The republicans opposed the confirmation
The republicans opposed the confirmation ister and Special Commissioner Blount. As the subject of the withdrawn Hawaiian of these agents, however, and when a yea the subject of the withdrawn Hawaiian and nay vote was demanded, the absence treaty is one which the Senate has only considered in executive session, it is assumed that the President's message is addressed to the Senate in its confidential capacity as the adviser of the executive and the sharer with him of the treatymaking power of the government. Suggested Election.

A Washington special to the Baltimore Sun, believed to have official inspiration, purports to give the result of "Paramount Authority" Blount's investigations of the situation in Hawaii. According to this authority Mr. Blount's recommendation is 'that no action should be taken by the United States to annex the island or estab-lish a protectorate over it without the full consent of all the natives. The report recommends that all questions involved in annexation and establishment of a protec-torate should be submitted to a vote of all natives, as well as foreigners, and upon their decision rests the future policy of the

Which no one else has enjoyed. It is stated that the islanders have unbounded confidence in the United States, and are willing to accept their decree as to the policy to be What It Would Mean.

It has been charged before that this administration is opposed to annexation and to a protectorate (except of a very mild character), but it has never before been asserted, on authority known to be favorable to the administration, that it favors practically the restoration of the monarchy. Whether, in the event of the natives declar-Whether, in the event of the natives declaring against a protectorate and manifesting a desire for the restoration of Queen Lill-uokalani, the United States is to undertake the task of replacing her on the throne and maintaining her there against what appears to be the desire of the entire foreign-born population (except Mr. Spreckles), is a question upon which no disclosure is made.

Secretary Gresham was seen by a Star reporter today, but refused to discuss the Hawaiian question and would neither affirm nor deny the report that Mr. Blount had recommended the submission of the question of government to the natives.

Sixteen New Ones at Brunswick Reported Yesterday. There were sixteen new cases of yellow fever and one death in Brunswick and vicinity yesterday. No reports were received by Surgeon General Wyman today of further spread of the disease at Jessup or neigh-boring towns. It has been determined, however, to enlarge the camp of detention located twenty-live miles out of Brunswick, and Surgeon General Wyman today ordered a consignment of lumber and building material to provide additional accommodations for persons that may be sent to the

A Steel Plate Test.

A steel plate, Harveyized, representing over 600 tons of side armor for the battle ship Maine, will be tested at the Indian Head proving grounds in a few weeks. A twelve-inch gun will be used to attack it, firing three shots with different velocities. The Maine will be the first ship of the navy armored with plates treated with the new process.

Decisions were rendered in the following land cases yesterday: J. E. Daniel agt. G. W. Webb, H. C. Steele, et al.; J. B. Graham agt. W. A. Cooke; T. H. Butler agt. W. H. Kinner; S. Cooper agt. J. Harrington; J. T. Hunt agt. D. Harrington; H. N. Paddock agt. C. F. Osgood:

DETAILS OF THE CONTEST.

SANDY HOOK, N. J., Oct. 5 .- All New York, apparently, got up early this morning, and, taking boats that varied in size from an ocean steamship to a naphthe launch, put to sea. The first of the races for the America's cup, the trophy of international racing, was on, and the town was yacht mad. The days of the naval review, when the waters of the upper bay and the Hudson river opposite the city were crowded with all manner of craft, were recalled but today the vessels were larger and braver, for they had the bosom of the Atlantic for a rendezvous, instead of the placid waters of the bay.

Never before in one day have so many people embarked upon vessels and gone to

Never has such a flotilia passed down be ween the shores of Staten and Long broad expanse of the lower bay to Sandy Hook and across the bar. Experiences at the trial races, when small steamboats were nearly swamped in heavy seas, led many thousands to secure passage on big ocean steamships, which were for the time There were also Long Island sound steamboats and coasting boats built for rough dreds of miles away were in the procession and with all the local steamboats, the steam and sailing yachts and myriads of tugs,

As for tugs, it would be impossible to say now many were out, but apparently the whole lower bay was filled with them. Steam yachts with merry parties on board were plentiful, and the ocean in front of this place was never before so cro

Inspector Smith of the weather bureau was of the opinion that there would be no yacht race today, if indications pointed to anything. The wind this morning at $

of the breeziest points along the coast, were only fourteen miles an hour, with no indications of an increase.

"The weather will be clearer later in the
